S'HAI STOCK EXCHANGE IS SEEKING WAY TO END ABUSE

Modification Of The Rules Proves Beneficial

STOPS 'STICKING'

Committee Determined To Preserve Integrity

BY DAVID ARAKIE

The Shanghai Stock Exchange has in recent months essayed to remedy certain evils. Previously we recorded the fact that the Committee of this body had introduced certain regulations governing what is termed the "sticking" of rates on the Stock Exchange board.

Prior to this new law there seems to have been very little control exercised over members as regards the making of "official" rates. The practice had grown on the part of some to create an artificial rate in certain stocks by means of bidding on the Stock Exchange and eventually buying or selling a very small lot of shares.

The danger of such action was apparent for some time for it meant that a market quotation could be knocked up and down on a quiet day on a small parcel of shares. With the introduction of the new rule regulating all "official" transactions and the number of shares to be bought or sold by members to allow them the privilege of having these prices "quoted", the evil has been checked and incidentally given principals greater confidence in the Stock Exchange and the quotations advertised through this source every day.

It is hoped that the Committee of the Shanghai Stock Exchange will not consider its labors ended and that other changes, where such are necessary, will continue to be made.

IMPORTANT MEDIUM

The Stock Exchange is the avenue through which millions of taels pass through in normal months. When business is good the average settlements run easily into seven figures. And besides the forward business there is a greater volume of trade in stocks and shares transacted on the cash basis. While it is true that a Stock Exchange is often the barometer of the country's trade, it is equally true that from it a very high degree of honesty is demanded. That the Shanghai Stock Exchange has in the past well maintained the high traditions of similar institutions in New York, London and elsewhere, it does not necessarily follow that all its Rules and Regulations are perfect nor should they be as immutable as the laws of the Medes and Persians.

There is room for more improvements and alterations, and the investing public of Shanghai looks up to the Committee of the Stock Exchange to make them. At present all business that passes through the books of members of the Exchange are classed under two heads—official and unofficial. What in Shanghai Stock Exchange parlance is considered "official" is a transaction that takes place between two members of the Exchange. An unofficial transaction is one that is done between a member of the Stock Exchange with a principal or between two principals. The "unofficial" business, it is not compulsory for members to report, while transactions that require to have the hall mark of official put on it must satisfy the conditions recently imposed, and be done between two members.

WHY THE DISTINCTION?

It is somewhat curious why such a distinction should be made, and why particularly should it not be obligatory on a member of the Stock Exchange to record a transaction that he has succeeded in putting through between himself and a client. The practice lends itself to abuse and is worthy of being tackled by the Committee if that complete satisfaction that they desire to give the investing and gambling public is the motive that always actuates them. To illustrate how inequitably such an arrangement works at present, one instance alone can be given. Before the March settlement on the Exchange, which was the heaviest since the slump years, a number of shares passed between brokers and principals, the business not being reported on the Exchange. In Oriental Cotton shares as high as Tls. 8.75 to Tls. 9 was paid, and Tariff reform gained a stride yesterday when another unofficial revenue bureau went out of action.

The agency responsible for the benefit is Shu-Ah-kwe, who ordinarily does not go in for reforms of any kind, but contents himself with piloting a small cargo barge between given points. Shu had completed one of these voyages the other day and was making ready to discharge a consignment of kindling wood near the Urga Road bridge over the Sawgin Creek when the unexpected assessment fell due. Announcement of the tax was made by Tsa Kyung-foo, who came aboard accompanied by another burly person, and inquired casually if the skipper had his receipt. What receipt? Shu wanted to know. Why the receipt showing that he had paid his landing tax, replied Tsa. Shu said he had never heard of any such levy and went about making preparations for the unloading of the wood. Tsa bade him pause, assured him that there was indeed such a tax, that it was collectable then and there and that he—Tsa—was a duly authorised collector for the Municipal Council and if Shu attempted to land any cargo without making payment things would happen to him. Whereupon Tsa handed over fifty cents and his two callers withdrew, without mentioning the receipt.

Shu set about unloading his billets in no amiable frame of mind and had about reached the conclusion that the late Henry George was right when Tsa reappeared. This worthy said he was sorry, but there had been an error in the reckoning and Shu would please hand over 20 coppers more. Shu was thoroughly peeved by this time, however, and besides Tsa was not accompanied by the burly person, so the skipper grabbed his visitor, rushed him off the boat and yelled for assistance. This was provided by C. P. C. 462, who likewise confessed ignorance of the tax mentioned but thought he remembered seeing Tsa before.

In the Mixed Court yesterday Tsa submitted that his accuser must be suffering from defective hearing or a misapprehension of the Shanghai dialect, or something of the sort. He was sure that he had not mentioned anything about a fee for the landing of goods. He was equally positive that he did not represent himself to be an employee of the Municipality. He had at time, though, busied himself in "helping" the Council's road coolies and he might have mentioned this fact in order to establish himself with Shu as a man of standing in the community. This was as a preliminary to a request for a small loan—nothing more. He had an aunt who was very sick and in need of pills and such and he thought Shu might lend him a few coppers to meet the emergency.

It was the theory of the police, however, that Tsa has been doing a very flourishing business taxing navigators of the Sawgin creek, who will doubtless learn with interest that he has been put in storage for two months.

A MILD INTENT

Found meandering about within the enclosed premises of a home on North Szechuen Road at a ghoulish hour of the night Loh Zung-sung was collared by the householder, handed over to the corner policeman and hustled off to the police station.

In Court next day the Assessor inquired of Loh if the suspicions of the complainants in the case had any foundation. Loh said certainly not. His only reason for entering the compound in which he was captured, he said, was that he fancied he might be able to steal a brass kettle which

Pilgrims And Sightseers Flock To "Little India" Over The Easter Holidays

Hangchow's Monasteries, Temples And Other Sights On Picturesque West Lake Magnet For Curious Foreigners And Pious Chinese

BY LARRY LEHRBAS

Thousands of pilgrims are paying their annual visits to the far-famed shrines and beauty spots surrounding the West Lake this week. To the myriads of Chinese wearing red, yellow, green and orange aprons, and bags slung at their sides, it is the day of days for they are chin-chinning joss in "Little India." To the foreigners who flocked there, especially over the Easter holidays, in raiment that ran the gamut from fur-overcoats to straw hats and ice-cream pants, it has been a wonderful opportunity to kick up their heels in the open places and see the much-touted scenic virtues of Hangchow.

At the beginning of the Easter holidays the trains leaving the Shanghai North station were crowded with what would be described in Americanese as parlor picnickers. Perambulating phonographs with the latest jazz records, thermos bottles for the finicky drinkers and other accoutrements of the pleasure-loving 'exiles' of Shanghai were more in evidence that regulation camping kit, although one party made up of members of the American Consulate staff, camped in tents on the Ch'ien T'ang river on beyond Zahkou, the station at the end of the railway line, did their own cooking, and came back fully qualified members of the Royal Hirsute Adorned Society of Beavers.

THE BUSY BEES

The guide-books, which, of course, all good griffin tourists carry religiously, give the fare by ricsha from the station to the hotels scattered about the lake as 24 cents per hour, or 30 cents for the trip but as every day is a festival day when a large crowd of foreigners lands in a tourist's paradise, the prices were automatically boosted until the ricsha coolies kicked at a dollar. The same elevated prices held true for everything else from accommodations at the hotels to trips on the lake by boat, chair coolies or picture posta! cards. The busy little bees of Hangchow were garnering the honey while the getting was good.

Hangchow, to be trite, is one of the most historic spots in all China for the interested foreigner as well as the good Buddhist. Its temples and monasteries are famed all over the land. It is the mecca of all in that part of China who would chin chin their favorite joss and gain merit with prayers and copper cash.

The foreigners, armed with their trusty guide-books, immediately set forth by boat, by ricsha, by chair or on foot to religiously visit every possible point of interest indicated in the rubberstamped tours outlined in their vacation bibles.

A CHINESE VENICE

Those who paddled, or rather allowed themselves to be paddled about the West Lake while they relaxed in perfect comfort and dangled their fingers in the water, (if they followed their guide book) began with a boat trip along the Northern shore of the lake visiting the Monastery of Manifest Congratulations, The Monastery of the Great Buddha, The Needle Pagoda (although few left their boats to become a mountain goat), the Taoist Temple of Ko Ling, the Cave of the Purple Cloud, the Tomb of Yao, the Hall of the Formerly Ardent Ones, the Tomb of Ch'iu Chin, and the grave of Su Hsiao Hsiao before rushing madly back to the hotel for tiffin.

The hour for tiffin depended a great deal on whether the tourist was parked at the New Hotel, the Mutual Hotel with Bar or some residence on the Inner West Lake, the nearest to the majority of scenic spots, or whether they were at the Chinese hotel across the lake or at the 'Y' or Railway Station hotel in the city.

Hangchow is rightfully China's Venice. There are millions of boats in China, dotting every canal or river or body of water of any sort, but there are no others like those at Hangchow. To skid about in one of the gondolas on a perfect sunshiny day as Easter Saturday was, or on a gorgeous moonlight night as Saturday night, smoking and gazing at the moon with calf-eyes and listening to the pleasing monotony of the 'chunk-chunk' of the oars hitting the water or the tinkling of Chinese music from other boats on the

MUKDEN DENIES REPORT OF PLAN OF A MONARCHY

No Invitation Was Extended To Defunct Emperor, Officials Say

(Special To The China Press)

Mukden, April 2.—It is officially denied that attempts are made by the military authorities here to revive the monarchical movement and to place Hsuan Tung, the defunct Manchu Emperor, in the throne. Neither Marshal Chang Tso-lin, nor any of the military officers in the three Manchurian Provinces, has extended any invitation to the former ruler and the report that Hsuan Tung had been asked to come to Manchuria to set up a government under a Constitutional monarchy is absolutely groundless.

Rumors are also rife that troops have been sent to Shihfengkow in preparation for a military campaign, but officials here say that the reports are merely propaganda work aimed to stir up more trouble between the Fengtien and Chihli forces.

Since the internal strife last year, the Manchurian provinces have been concentrating their efforts on self-government and reorganising the military forces. The provincial governments have no intention of conducting any more war against the Chihli-ites and there is possibility for a promise between them and a section of the Chihli faction.

PROMINENT MEN ARE INVOLVED IN MURDER MYSTERY

Son Of Attorney General Daugherty Questioned

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

New York, April 3.—Police today announced that they would question Mr. Draper Daugherty, only son of United States Attorney General Harry B. Daugherty, in connection with the murder of Miss Dorothy Keenan, a butterfly of Broadway, whose mysterious death has set the entire city agog.

It is believed that Mr. Daugherty will be able to throw some light on the mystery as it is understood that he was one of her admirers and knew both her brothers. It is also believed that Mr. Daugherty may have been one of prospective victims in a gigantic blackmailing plot in which Miss Keenan was to be the lure.

Mr. J. Kearsley Mitchell, the millionaire son-in-law of Mr. Edward T. Stokesbury of Philadelphia, has also been questioned by police in connection with the murder. Mr. Mitchell was also listed a possible blackmail victim and the police are working on the theory that Miss Keenan was killed by the blackmailers because of an effort on her part to protect Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Dougherty.

Both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Daugherty are absolved from any complicity in the murder by the authorities.

French Extend Occupied Zone

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Essen, April 3.—Director Schaffer has disclaimed responsibility for yesterday's trouble.

The French military authorities have arrested four Krupp directors on the charge of inciting attacks by German workmen on French troops Saturday.

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 2.—The French today extended the occupation region to Mannheim.

The German newspapers report that the town itself has been occupied. On the other hand a French semi-official message states that the object of the occupation is merely to secure control of Neckar station and the motor factory in the suburbs of Mannheim.

Mannheim is a city of Baden, lying on the right bank of the Rhine at its confluence with the River Neckar. Its population is about 200,000 and with the city of Ludwigshafen across the river, it forms an important manufacturing center.

Effective navigation of the Rhine ceases at Mannheim so that the city is not only the largest port on the upper course of the stream, but it is the great emporium for South Germany, where agricultural products and timber are marketed.

Its manufactures include, besides automobiles, electric apparatus, and cables, celluloid, furniture and chemicals. It is also a center of the tobacco industry and has sugar refineries as well as many breweries.

DOMESTIC LOAN DRAWINGS TO BE SUSPENDED YEAR

Scheme Will Net $24,000,000 —Part To Go To Foreigners

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 3.—It is reported from Chinese sources that Mr. Liu En-yuan, the Minister of Finance, has informed the foreign Legations that the Chinese Government proposes not to have drawings on domestic loans or, in other words, to suspend the amortisation on them for one year.

It is understood that this plan, if carried out, would mean that the Government would retain about $24,000,000 which should be refunded to the bondholders.

The Finance Minister is stated to be planning to use $14,000,000 of this amount for the readjustment of foreign obligations and the payment of interest overdue on foreign loans, the remaining $10,000,000 to be used for administrative purposes.

These proposals have led to many rumors, some of the vernacular papers stating that the Government does not intend to pay interest on the bonds, but this is little credited and bonds today are quoted strong.

London, April 3.—The ex-Kaiser and his bride, the former Princess Hermine, have definitely and finally separated, according to dispatches from Doorn today.

The Princess has gone to Germany to make her home in the future with relatives.

Rumors that all has not been going well with the ex-Kaiser and his wife since their recent marriage have gone out from Doorn several times and the separation comes as no surprise. The Princess is reported to have quarrelled with the ex-Kaiser on several occasions, and publicly stated that she was 'bored with life at Doorn.'

TRIAL OF TWO POLICE OFFICERS IS RESUMED

Witnesses For Prosecution Expected To End Testimony Today

Testimony of witnesses for the prosecution in the case in which Sub-Inspector F. J. Gabbutt and Detective Sergeant A. E. Balchin of the Municipal Police are charged with having illtreated a Chinese prisoner will probably be concluded when the hearing is resumed in the British Police Court before Judge Peter Grain at 10 o'clock this morning.

The hearing yesterday included the testimony of a large number of witnesses for the prosecution who gave detailed accounts of what they knew about the entire case. A large number of police from the various stations were interested spectators.

Sub-Inspector Thomas McKenna, of the Mixed Court, said he was present when a charge was preferred against the complainant of having stolen $740 on the 7th of February from P. C. Gavan. The case was heard by Assessor Mead and Magistrate Loh.

Mr. Macleod: Did you hear Detective Sergeant Balchin give evidence? Yes.

Can you tell us what he said?

Mr. Reader Harris objected.

The Magistrate: On what grounds?

Mr. Reader Harris said he could not see how evidence given by a man in the Municipal Police in the Mixed Court could be used against him. He also objected as there were no records produced—if the record of the Court was produced he had no objection.

POINT IS ARGUED

Mr. Macleod held that any evidence in any other proceedings by the accused Balchin was evidence unless he claimed that on that occasion he was entitled not to give evidence as it might incriminate. He (Counsel) held that was not done.

The Magistrate: There are exceptions.

Mr. Macleod: Yes, this is not one of them.

The Magistrate: There are statutory exceptions.

Mr. Macleod proceeded to quote authorities, and added that the record of the Court as to the evidence given at the Mixed Court would be produced.

Witness said he had the notes in his possession which were made at the time of the hearing of the case. Certified copies of the original, and the original notes, were produced. These constituted a record of the whole proceedings.

Witness then read from the record of the Court, which showed that a report had been made Four armed men entered 375A Mohawk Road by the back door and stole a large quantity of jewelry and clothing. A boat in Soochow Creek near the Chapoo Road bridge was also robbed by six men, one of whom boarded the boat and threw everything worthwhile to his confederates.

HARDING ASKS INVESTIGATION OF ABNORMAL SUGAR PRICES

President Will Cut Tariff If Facts Justify It

HOOVER BLAMED

Democrats Making Outcry For Political Purposes

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Washington, April 3.—President Harding, in a letter to the United States Tariff Commission late today, ordered the Commission to undertake a comprehensive investigation into the question of whether or not the recent rise in the price of sugar was in any way brought about by the prevailing duty on sugar.

The President in his letter to the Commission said "It is extremely difficult to believe that present duty on sugar has any part in the abnormal prices now prevailing, but if the Commission finds any ground for believing that the duty is even partly responsible I shall be ready to proclaim a reduction in the sugar duty as provided by law."

It is generally believed that the President's letter will do a great deal toward taking the wind out of the sails of the Democrats who have been making considerable campaign capital out of the situation.

The Republican National Committee today issued a statement denying in toto charges that sugar speculation which in the past few days has considerably boosted the price of sugar was caused by the new tariff passed by the last Republican Congress.

CAUSTIC LANGUAGE

"The Democratic politicians, free trade advocates and their fellow demogogues and agitators are working hand-and-glove with the sugar speculators by attempting to make political capital out of this situation," the Committee's statement declares.

The fight over the speculation in sugar with the consequent boost in prices has now centered about Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover. The People's Legislative Service, led by Senator Robert M. La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, is after Mr. Hoover's scalp as a result of the sugar situation, asserting that the profiteers have control of the situation through a blunder by Hoover. They have already demanded that a Federal Grand Jury sit in Washington and probe the entire affair.

Democratic politicians have taken advantage of the situation by making political capital of the rise in sugar in an effort to beat President Harding for re election and also to spike any guns in a boom for Hoover should Harding decide not to run again.

APPEALS TO HARDING

Mr. Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, issued an appeal to President Harding to make use of the flexible power given the President under the new tariff and proclaim an immediate reduction of fifty percent in the duty on sugar, which would bring the duty down to the Democratic idea of a low tariff and thus give them more political capital. The result of lowering the duty would be to break the domestic market through the importation of Cuban sugar.

It was asserted that Secretary Hoover, in issuing his survey of the world sugar situation which made it appear as though there would be a sugar shortage neglected to tabulate the hold-over supply, forecasting only the crop possibilities.

Mr. Hoover has issued a statement in his own behalf declaring that the facts and figures of his reports on the sugar crop have been distorted and that they were never intended to indicate a shortage. On the contrary he asserts that there is a world surplus with indications of an increased surplus at the end of 1923.

Cancellation Of Pact Came At Bad Time, Editors Think

Exclusive Dispatch To THE CHINA PRESS

Tokio, April 3.—The Lansing-Ishii Agreement having been already virtually abrogated by the Nine Powers, its actual abrogation is regarded as a mere formality.

Except for those papers which use the decision as basis for attack on the government, no sensation is being made of the cancellation of the Lansing agreement, although some papers comment in restricted fashion to the effect that while the cancellation was inevitable it came at a bad time, encouraging China in her demand for the abrogation of the Sino-Japanese Treaty of 1915.

The Hochi states that Japan is in China on account of her territorial propinquity. The Chugai also fears that cancellation of the agreement will aggravate Sino-Japanese relations.

DRY HUMOR

Burbling a liquidly melodious accompaniment, Foo Ah-yui was ironing a shirt in the good old fashioned way, dampening the garment now and then with an adroitly directed spray from his mouth. While thus engaged, he was observed by Sanitary Inspector Terrill and was hauled away to the Mixed Court, where it was found that he had been convicted several times previously for his obsolete irrigation methods. The Court administered a $50 fine and a stiff lecture on sanitary conventions and Foo went back to the ironing board with the wellsprings of occupational inspiration completely dried up.

BANKERS HERE OPPOSE NEW MINT CHIEF

The appointment of Chu Yu-chi as director of the Shanghai Mint by Peking has caused a storm of protests among banking interests in Shanghai, which favor the retention of the service of Mr. Lo Hung-yen, the present director.

In a message to the Ministry of Finance, the Shanghai bankers who hold a lien over the mint property, state that they had only recently come to some satisfactory arrangement with Mr. Lo whereby the mint's plans may be proceeded with, but the sudden change of the director would greatly handicap the plans.

Chu was censured by Tung Kang for corruption when the latter was Minister of Finance, according to the Shun Pao.

GEN. TING HUAI MAY ABANDON HIS SOUTHERN MISSION

No date has been fixed for the proposed trip of General Ting Huai of Canton, following the conversation he had with Dr. Sun Yat-sen's Shanghai representatives, Messrs. Sun Hung-yi, Hsu Chien, Wang Ching-wei and Hu Han-ming. General Ting was authorized by President Li Yuan-hung to proceed to Canton to offer Dr. Sun the post of Disarmament Commissioner.

Ting hesitates to go to the South, because he was told by the Kuomintang leaders that Dr. Sun would not only reject the offer but would consider it an insult to the entire southern administration. Ting has wired the results of his conversation to President Li and asked for further instructions.

MARCONI PLANS IMMENSE RADIO NET FOR BRITAIN

Construction To Begin As Soon As License Is Issued

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 2.—Mr Godfrey Isaacs, the Managing Director of Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd., states that he is only awaiting the issue of a licence by the Government to begin immediately the erection in England of the first of a series of powerful Marconi transmitting stations forming a world chain for the purposes of rapid commercial wireless telegraphy.

The station will really be a group of six stations involving capital expenditure of from £2,000,000 to £3,000,000. Each of the six stations will be able to communicate simultaneously with six different parts of the world, yet if there is a rush of messages to any one center any or all of the remaining stations can be turned on to relieve the pressure.

This is expected to be most valuable commercially as the geographical distribution of the big centers is such that their rush hours will not occur simultaneously. The six stations are estimated to have a total minimum transmitting capacity of 35,000 to 40,000 words an hour.

The English station will be ultimately linked up with ten other stations to be situated in South Africa, Australia, Montreal, Vancouver, India, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro, Pernambuco, Peking and Tokio. It is honed that the English station will be in operation within a year.

Pilgrims, Tourists Flock To Hangchow

lake is the original edition of 'The Life of Reilly.'

'THE DAILY DOZEN'

After tiffin, unless you are intrigued by the bridge or mahjongg party started on the hotel porch by the four-flushing sightseers, you always go to the Monastery of Ling Yin, the spirit's retreat, which is by far the prettiest of all Hangchow's temples as well as having the most interesting story to write the home-folks about afterward. The trip to Ling Yin and beyond by riesha may be substituted for your 'daily dozen.' It was built 1,600 years ago by a priest who came from India and whose monkey became excited upon entering the place and ran through the trees and grottoes as though it were an Indian mountain and glen. The priest, being a quick-thinker, immediately concluded it was a peak that had been transplanted from India itself and named it "The Peak That Flew Over From India." (You can clip out that paragraph and send it home instead of writing. It's authentic because it's taken right out of Mr. Robert Fitch's handy little guidebook).

The Chinese pilgrims are greatly interested in seeing the hill with wings, and the foreigners are just as interested in seeing the original mountain of the Mountain and Mahomet tale (Chinese version). Whether any of them come out of curiosity in hopes that the mountain will unfold its pinions and soar back to India before their very eyes some day is a mooted question.

MADE TO ORDER

Ling Yin is made to order for the casual tourist or the one who wants to see everything in the least possible time. It has everything that any temple in China possesses in addition to real natural beauty. The 'Curving Dragon Bridge', 'The Pavilion of the sound of the running waters of Spring', 'the Kings of Heaven', the 'Five Hundred Lo Han' and all the other necessities of a first class temple are all there, compact and easily seen without being grabbed by a persistent priest and signing the temple register (at a dollar a signature) more than once. We personally got away in wonderful style until one wise monk pulled out a book in which he asserted was the signature of Marco Polo, the first foreigner to visit Hangchow. That got the dollar and the fur-lined loving cup!

THE BABY WHALES

From the Ling Yin you may jazz by ricsha over to the Gem Spring of the Dancing Fish in lieu of another set of calisthenic exercises. It appears that about 1,440 years ago a priest was reciting his prayers when suddenly the Dragon King appeared in the form of an old woman. When he, or she, or it, clapped his or her or its hands in sign of approval there suddenly appeared a spring, which has since been used for the preservation of fish life.

The dancing fish described in the guide-books as gold and blue colored carp are in reality nothing but lazy little whales exceeding in size anything that any Isaac Walton in the wide world ever dared tell his friends or wife was 'so long, but it got away'. For ten coppers you can purchase a little tray of rough biscuits, the idea being to toss them in the pond and see the fish dance. If you really think they will, and especially when it happens to be the pilgrim season or an Easter holiday, just try it!

Other temples and monasteries abound in the vicinity but may be passed by unless time is plentiful, but the panorama of landscape seen from the tower on top of the North High Peak is well worth the climb, even though you happen to be a fat and easily winded relic of too much indulgence in the flesh pots of life.

To complete the vacation, depending entirely on your time and your ability to cling onto a galloping riesha or jog along in a chair you may circle the Southern shore of the lake and the Dragon Well valley, featured by the Thunder Peak pagoda, and a flock more of monasteries, or visit the shops, temples and sights within Hangchow itself. The Mahommedan Mosque, the Great Medicine Shop and the fan shops for which Hangchow is justly famous are included in the trip. Hangchow is also famous for its hams, pressed to make them thin—and also tough, if the samples distributed to the tourists are any criterion.

And then unless you want to stand up all the way back to Shanghai the next thing to do is to procure chair and take the trip over the hill to Zah-kou, the little station at the end of the line. The trip across takes about two hours and is well worth taking if you are interested in mulberry trees with fresh green shoots, peach trees laden with fragrant blossoms and an endless vista of graves decorating the wooded hills en route. Other temples and pagodas may be seen near Zah-kou and because of the crowded trains at this season of the year it is best to dash to Zah-kou and get in the train and get a seat before the train reaches Hangchow. It's really a happy idea. Only over Easter everybody else did the same!

Wedding

BROWN—POTE HUNT

Miss Muriel Jane Pote-Hunt, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. R. Pote-Hunt and Mr. Walter James Brown, son of the late Mr. A. V. Brown were married Monday at Holy Trinity Cathedral by the Very Rev. Dean Symons. Mr. Brown is assistant secretary of the Shanghai Gas Company and is a Sergeant Major of the Machine Gun Company of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was attended by Miss Gladys Pote-Hunt, her sister. Miss Clara Brown, sister of the groom, and Miss Jean Hunter as brides-maids, and Master Dick Pote-Hunt and Master Bobbie Roach as pages. Mr. David Campbell was best man, and Messrs. J. Pote-Hunt, J. B. Brown, H. J. Fears and Rayden acted as ushers.

The bride was attired in a gown of white charmeuse veiled in Italian lace which was daintily draped and caught up with orange blossom. She wore a tulle veil and wreath of orange blossom, and carried a sheaf of roses and carnations. The bridesmaids wore frocks of lavender georgette and lace, and silver grey crinoline hats trimmed with mauve flowers. They carried bouquets of sweet peas. The pages were dressed in sailor suits. The mother of the bride wore an attractive gown of fawn georgette trimmed with steel beads, and carried a sheaf of tea roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, 698 Rue Ratard, where numerous beautiful presents were on view.

The honeymoon is to be spent at the West Lake, Hangchow, the bride's going-away dress being a henna silk crepe costume trimmed with grey georgette, with hat to match.

A Woman Wrecks Terrible Revenge on a Man who will not Worship Her.

When her husband's secretary wouldn't flatter her the woman vowed revenge. What did "Salome" Vandam do to Harry Torrence? It contributes the smashing climax to "A Modern Salome," the sensational photoplay starring the beautiful Hope Hampton, coming to the Carlton Thursday.

WORLD TOURING PARTY COMING HERE APRIL 9

Cook Globe Trotters On S.S. Samaria Have Already Seen Europe

Bringing 366 members of a world touring party, the Cunard liner Samaria, under the direction of the Thomas Cook and Son Travel Agency, is expected to arrive in Shanghai on the morning of April 9. This vessel which is sailing eastward is the third round-the-world touring ship to visit Shanghai in the past twelve-month.

The liner left New York for European waters January 24 and prior to its arrival in Shanghai it will have visited Madeir, French North Africa, Italy, Egypt, India, Ceylon, Burma, Java, Straits Settlements, Cochin-China, Manila, South China and the Island of Kyushu. By the time it reaches New York again it will have travelled more than 30,000 miles and will have visited several countries in addition to those named.

After the steamer docks in Shanghai the party will separate. Of the 366 tourists, 100 will go from Shanghai to Peking by rail and later go to Yokohama by train; 150 will travel with the ship along the Japanese coast, and 116 will leave the steamer at Kobe and visit Nara and Kobe before going on to Yokohama by train.

Those who leave the boat at Kobe will visit Kyoto, Nara and Osaka. At Kyoto a special cherry blossom dance will be presented for the visitors and at Nara a temple dance and also a kyogen dance will be given. Part of this party will return to the steamer and go to Yokohama by water and others will come by rail. From here the boat will go to Nagasaki, where she is due April 13. The liner will remain there only one day and will then proceed through the Inland Sea to Kobe.

This cruise is being conducted on lines slightly different from those of the other world tour ships that have come to the East this season. The Samaria is a vessel of 20,000 tons and has accommodations for more persons than are being carried, but in order to make sure that all aboard would travel in complete comfort the number was limited. All two berth cabins are occupied by only one person and all four berth cabins are carrying only two persons. The steamer is under the command of the regular Cunard Line officers and the tourists are being cared for by a group of Cook officials, all of whom have been over the route before.

The commander of the Samaria is Captain G. S. Horsburgh; Mr. W. A. Hawke is staff captain, Mr. L. S. Carr is chief officer and Mr. W. Duncan chief engineer. Among the Cook officials Mr. R. H. Skinner is directing the cruise while Captain H. A. Bennett is associate manager. They are being aided by 10 assistants.

It adds that in the event of further procrastination, the chief accountants of the different railway administrations will be liable to dismissal.

ANTI-JAPANESE BOYCOTT TAKES PRACTICAL FORM

Both the Sincere and Wing On Companies have rescinded several contracts concluded with the Japanese manufacturers and agreed not to replenish hereafter their stocks with Japanese goods, as a result of the request made by the newly formed Citizens' Convention on Japanese Diplomatic Affairs, according to the Chinese press.

The Committee has written to the Chinese newspapers asking them not to insert advertisements for Japanese goods in their papers. A request has also been made to several Chinese Cinemas to screen appropriate literature in connection with the questions at issue so as to remind constantly the audiences of the matter.

It is reported that the Japanese authorities have established a censorship on all mail matter passing between China and Japan with a view to discriminating against the anti-Japanese literatures.

Stock Exchange To Stop Abuses

yet neither the "official" nor the "unofficial" list disclosed it, the "official" rate being given at Tls. 7.25 buyers.

We need hardly enlarge upon the mischief this can do to the investing public, who look up to the Stock Exchange for correct, impartial and disinterested quotations. In other parts of the East it is incumbent upon members of Exchanges to announce every business they place on their books, irrespective of whether it was consummated through brokers and brokers or through brokers and clients.

While it is always emphatic that Stock Exchange members should refrain from speculative deals, we confess that it is not practicable to enforce a ruling of this description. It is a recognised fact that many members speculate on their account. At Settlement time often there is a scramble to cover "short" sales, when higher values are consequently paid. It is the same vice versa with shares "bought in" at lower quotations from clients who fail to take delivery but pay differences.

There should certainly be one law governing these announcements of daily business on the Stock Exchange, and the Committee should make it compulsory for all transactions to be announced on the Exchange and incorporated as the business of the day. It would be the means of strengthening confidence and also serve to dissipate any illusion that might exist that the Stock Exchange is run only for the benefit of the members, who have the power to put up and knock down quotations at their free will.

The honoring of committments on the part of members is another important question, and although all Stock Exchanges in the East have these periodical troubles we feel that the Committee should at all times demand from the members a clean bill as regards their committments with brokers as well as principals. Any laxity in this respect serves to impair the soundness of the institution. There must be safeguards of a substantial nature offered to the investing public who do business with brokers. What is the earthly use of buying 7,000 Ewo Cotton shares at Tls. 12 cum dividend and find at the time of delivery, when they stand at Tls. 15 ex-dividend, that the broker cannot fulfil his obligations. Great mischief can be caused thereby, for the client may have sold these very shares, in anticipation of his getting delivery, to another broker at a profit, and eventually, by reason of the default, be compelled to go and buy in the open market, thus not only losing the profit that was his due but having to pay on top of it all.

TIENTSIN WINS HOCKEY GAME FROM POLICE

Visitors Completely Outclass The Local Players

MAUDE IS STAR

Score 7 Goals To 1 For Shanghai; Good Crowd Out

The Shanghai Municipal Police hockey team was snowed under at the cricket club grounds yesterday by the Second 55th Cokes Rifles team from Tientsin, who are here for the interport games. The match was just a friendly one, arranged by the hockey enthusiasts among the police here, who wanted a go at Lieutenant Maude's aggregation from the North. The score was 7 to 1.

The Shanghai players were outclassed from the start by the visitors, who were lighter and much faster than the locals. Lieutenant Maude, who is counted one of the best hockey players in China, gave a remarkable exhibition throughout, scoring four of his team's seven goals and aiding materially in the negotiation of the other three.

Lieut. Maude's play was a revelation to the hockey sharps here. He would get possession of the ball at one end of the field and dribble it, much after the fashion of an expert of footballer, the whole length of the field, shooting into the net from the positions thus created. There simply was no stopping him.

The Tientsin players showed that they were vastly more experienced than the locals, and also that there was much more natural talent among them. Their passing was fast and accurate and their co-ordination was wonderful to look upon. They swept the ball in and out among the police players, passing with extraordinary rapidity, completely bewildering the homesters.

Hockey apparently is much more popular with the police and soldiers in the North than it is with the police here; accunted for perhaps, that in the North there is much indulgence in ice hockey—a game that is practically unknown in these parts.

For Shanghai the only man to score a goal was Diprose, who managed to get through the visiting defense for a brief moment.

The Tientsin men were superior in every way. They were quicker on the ball, faster on their feet, and much more adept at team play. The exhibition was greatly enjoyed by the goodly crowd of spectators.

40,000 See England Beat French Rugby Fifteen At Paris

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, April 2.—In an International rugby match played here today England beat France by 12 points to 3.

Forty thousand people watched the game. The weather was perfect. France scored from a free kick in the first five minutes. England retaliated hotly and after several scrums near the French line Wakefield scored a try which was not converted. The score was 3 points to 3 at the interval.

On the resumption of play Jaurreguy, the French three-quarter, made a brilliant run from the home 25 to the region of the English line where he was collared.

A desperate struggle ensued, the French forwards carrying over the ball but failing to touch down. The French continued to press. Davies was prominent with fine kicking into touch.

England thus wins the International Championship.

Date Is Set For Dual Athletic Meet Abroad

The international intercollegiate track meet between combined Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge teams will be held July 21 in the stadium at Wembley, near London, the Harvard Athletic Association has announced. Several tentative dates had been under consideration.

With the date of the meet definitely known the American team has engaged passage on the S. S. America, which will sail from New York June 30. The stadium at Wembley, now under construction, will be completed in April. It will accommodate 100,000 spectators.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

SOME of the golf writers in England are demanding that an indictment be drawn against Colonel Bogey, and that he be hauled before the court of golfing public opinion and compelled to answer the charge of interfering with the average player's efficiency.

If this is done it will be another instance of "American influence on British golf," and one that will be much more revolutionary in its effect than the other changes that have been brought about in the mother country as a result of successive American "invasions."

Colonel Bogey was banished from American golf courses long ago, on the ground that he was not sufficiently severe as a task master. This, to many a poor duffer who has no wilder hope than to swap the old gentleman stroke for stroke some sunny day, will sound like heresy or nonsense; yet it is the truth. In America, except among the ol' timers, the Colonel is unknown, and there are thousands, perhaps millions of young American golfers who never even heard of him.

In America they reckon everything from the basis of par.

IT is not difficult to make out a good case against the crusty old Colonel, despite the fact that he has been solidly entrenched in his position for many years and the further fact that he has been the silent and unseen partner of untold millions of golfers on untold millions of rounds. Through sunshine and through rain, through mist and fog and snow the silent Colonel has tramped his endless rounds, always with his deadly consistency, always avoiding the traps and bunkers, always straight down the middle, albeit a trifle short at times. On every green he takes his regulation brace of putts, never less, never more—as regular in his habits as a fine old English gentleman, retired to his estates with his hounds and thoroughbreds.

And yet, in the new golfing epoch that has come upon us, the old Colonel has been adjudged "too slow" in America, and the same fate unquestionably awaits him in England, his birth place.

AT Kiangwan, here in Shanghai, the old Colonel wields far too much influence and it is safe to say that if the committee were to suspend him from membership in the club, or even expel him altogether, harsh as that treatment might seem to one who has enjoyed his privileges and perogatives so long, an improved brand of golf would undoubtably result, especially among the younger players.

The trouble with the Bogey holes on the local course is that they are not stiff enough, with the result that many players, content always to equal Bogey, do not lash out as they would if they were striving for par figures. A good sample of this is the first hole, 385 yards in length, a par 4 and Bogey 5.

No fairly good golfer ought to think of this hole in terms of anything but par, for surely it is not asking too much of a player to say that he ought to drive 190 or 200 yards, counting roll, and that he ought to follow such a drive with an equally good brassie shot. The green is a big one, flanked only by a shallow trap, and with no guarding traps or bunkers in front unless the harmless little chocolate drops half way down the fairway are looked upon as hazards. If every player at Kiangwan were to accustom himself to thinking of a par 4 instead of a Bogey 5 on this hole there would be far more brassie seconds instead of the "safe" irons that are used at present. This would bring about a greater familiarity with Friend Brassie, with the result that he would soon become less a stranger when taken from the bag on the long fifth, fourteenth and eighteenth—holes that are very frequently ruined for the sole lack of practice with Brassies. Scores of rounds at Kiangwan are spoiled every month by unwieldly eights and nines on the long holes, and one of the chief reasons why they are spoiled is because brassies are left in their bags by players who prefer a try for a Bogey on other holes with two irons rather than risk a go for a par with a brassie.

The same thing applies to the driver on the Bogey 4 holes like the third, fourth and seventh—holes that really ought to be par threes. If these holes were all par 3 and Bogey were banished from the course many players would lash out from the tees in an effort to reach the greens for threes or even twos, rather than aim at a spot comfortably beyond the cross bunkers with the thought in their minds that a fair drive and a fair iron will get them on for their Bogey fours. Thus there would be more practice at hard hitting, which in turn would stand the player in good stead on the long holes where a lusty clout from the tee is really necessary.

SOME players say: "Oh, well, why make the game so difficult? We play for the game's sake, not for a good score."

Well, wouldn't there be exactly the same motive if par were the basis of all play, and wouldn't a fifteen over par be just as good as a ten over the present Bogey, by reason of the relatively greater difficulty of par?

While we are at it why not do the best we can? What would you think of the young lawyer who started out in life with the idea of becoming only a fair lawyer, or the doctor whose ambition was to be known as just a fair doctor?

Not many of us would want that kind of a doctor delving around in our internal bunkers with a sharp knife in his hand, hey?

American Aviator Smashes A Record

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, April 2.—The Exchange Telegraph Company publishes an official announcement that the American Airman, Mr. Pearson, has beaten the world's record for 500 kilometers, held by the French airman, Lieut Bateller, covering the distance in one hour and fifty minutes (?). Another American airman failed to beat Lieut Carrier's record for the 1,000 kilometers.

The question mark in the above was inserted by Reuters but the performance is not as remarkable as it sounds so far as speed is concerned. Five hundred kilometers is 310.5 miles. This distance was covered in an hour and fifty minutes. This is at the rate of 169 miles an hour which is far below that of Lieut. B. L. Maughan who won the Pulitzer Trophy with a speed of 205.8 miles an hour over a 250 kilometer course.

B. H. Pearson, the winner of the 500 kilometer race is well known in aviation circles in America. He was an entrant in the "On to Detroit" race last year, but was not among the winners.

"A Modern Salome"

Greenwich Village, that community in Lower New York which is hailed as the habitat of long-haired men and short-haired women, is one of the localities depicted in "A Modern Salome," which is to be presented at the Carlton Theater Thursday to Saturday. A number of studio "shots" and some views of the quaint neighborhood were caught by Leonce Perret, the director, in photographing the dramatic story which deals with artist life and the exotic pleasures of the rich.

"A Modern Salome" is Hope Hampton's first starring vehicle, the beautiful artist being supported by Wyndham and Percy Standing, English stars who have attained considerable success on both stage and screen in England and America. The photoplay was suggested by Oscar Wilde's poem "Salome." On the same bill, Leeds and Le Mar, the clever Australian duo, will present snappy new sketches and songs.

PEKING DECORATE LOCAL OFFICIALS

A number of local Chinese officials were decorated by a Presidential Mandate under date of March 31. JUEL MADSEN, ARTIST, SOON TO LEAVE SHANGHAI

Noted Sketcher Will Continue Tour Around The World

JUEL MADSEN

The exhibition of sketches by Mr. Juel Madsen, the famous Danish artist, now on view at Kelly and Walsh on Nanking Road will be the last chance for Shanghailanders to see the work as Mr. Madsen has announced his departure from Shanghai within the next two weeks.

During the exhibition Mr. Madsen has been busy making farewell sketches of many Shanghai people and the short time left makes it advisable for any who wish to be sketched by him to do so at once.

Mr. Madsen has travelled all over the world, sketching as he went, and during his travels has pictured many of the world's notables as well as many historic and interesting scenes. During the evacuation of Gen. Wrangel's forces he was with the Russians as special artist representative of London Sketch, and during the war in North China last year drew several full pages of sketches of Chinese notables for Sketch. Many of the originals are included in the exhibition at Kelly and Walsh.

Mr. Madsen has also drawn innumerable sketches for the famous Scandinavian pictorial magazine "Illustreret Tidente" and many of his Shanghai sketches have appeared in The China Press during his stay here. He has a happy faculty of sketching his subjects in their most characteristic pose depicting each little thing about him or her that makes the sketch life-like to members of the family or close friends.

Mr. Madsen's studio is at 14 Kukiang Road.

Thompson Optical Company Opens New Offices Here

The Thompson Optical Company formally opened Shanghai offices yesterday at 49a, Nanking Road when prominent local business and official visitors called to extend congratulations.

Those visitors who inspected the plant and equipment were greatly impressed. On the ground floor there are three examination rooms, reception room and offices while the third floor and rear of the first and second floors are given over to a manufacturing plant unequalled in Shanghai. This plant, together with a large stock of optical goods is able to fill prescriptions or make repairs within a few hours.

The three examination rooms are equipped with every modern instrument known to both European and American scientists, many of which have never been seen in China and in fact, some of these instruments are rare in all but a few of the best equipped offices in London and New York. Such instruments as De Zeng Photo-Optometer, Skiascope Ambiyoscope, Opthalmic Cabinets and Frames, Punctometer Opthalmoscope, Opthalmometer Retinoscope, Phoropter, Perimeter Irrerpupilliarimeter, Tonometer Tropometerscope, Campimeterscope, proved a display and of much interest.

Dr. R. A. Thompson, who graduated and is registered in both England and America, has practised in Germany, France, England America and other countries during the past thirty years, during which time he has established offices and branches of the Thompson Optical Company in London, Paris, Berlin and many other important cities in America and Europe. He has letters of congratulation and testimonials from patients such as President Harding, the late President Theodore Roosevelt, ex-Presidents Taft and Wilson, Gypsy Smith the famous evangelist, the late Elbert Hubbard, Schumann-Heinke, Professor Stafford and many others.

Much credit for the equipment and arrangements is due to Mr C. P. Rakusen of S. Rakusen and Sons (China) Company, which firm is one of the largest importers of optical goods and equipment into China and represents a number of largest American and European manufacturers of optical goods. Mr. Rakusen, although he discontinued practice some years ago, is a graduate and registered doctor, and will direct the business and financial side of the Thompson Optical Company. Arrangements are now being made for branches at Peking, Hongkong, Tientsin, Hankow and other points throughout China.

Long Sentence is Given Coolie For Attempted Murder

Sentence of seven years' imprisonment was passed in the Mixed Court yesterday upon a coolie named Lien Kyung-sah convicted of attempting to murder two other Chinese with a chopper at 775 East Yalu Road on March 5.

The attack was made by the accused in a fit of jealous rage after one of the victims had taken a girl claimed by Lien to have been his sweetheart to a theater. Both men attacked were severely injured and have just got out of hospital. Lien admitted wielding the chopper but declared that the others first quarreled with him and threatened to attack him.

Chinese Teachers And Students Start A Radio Club

Teachers and students in various Chinese educational institutions in Shanghai and vicinity have organized the Chinese Radio Club adding still another organization to the increasing list of bodies of amateurs who are becoming interested in radio through the pioneering work done by The China Press and the Radio Corporation of China.

At the first meeting over 30 members were present when Mr. Ling outlined the importance of study in radio, regulations were drafted, and a group photograph of the members was taken. Efforts are now being made to include other interested Chinese amateurs. Any one wishing to join should communicate with Mr. K. D. Lieg of the Y.M.C.A. School.

The concerts being broadcast by the Radio Corporation of China from the roof of the Dollar building at 3 Canton Road continue to create new interest in radio in Shanghai, especially among the Chinese who are very keen in 'listening in.' The concerts are given every night at 8 o'clock.

as to the theft of $740 and £5 from P. C. Gavan. Det. Inspector Prosser brought his coolie into the office, saying that the man wished to leave his employ, and he (the Inspector) desired him to be kept so that enquiries might be made. The case was suspicious so the coolie was taken to the detectives' office, where he was questioned. Later he admitted taking $400, $150 of which he had paid as owing to girls. The $250 he had deposited with an uncle in Thibet Road. It was stated that the two statements made by the defendant were false.

The whole of Balchin's evidence at the Mixed Court was admitted.

Cross-examined by Mr. Reader Harris, witness said he made the note himself at the time. He made a note of all cases heard in his Court.

The next witness was Sergt. Doyle, of Hongkew Police Station. He produced the charge book, and added that he was on duty on February 5, this year, from 4 p.m. to midnight in the office or charge room. The charge made against the complainant as to larceny was in his handwriting. The theft was alleged to have been made in the Police quarters and from a foreign Policeman.

REFERS TO CHARGE

Mr. Macleod: Who laid the charge? Det. Sergt. Balchin.

Do you remember the time? That I cannot.

Did you see the man yourself? Yes.

What time? About 4 p.m.

Where was he—in the charge room? In the cell.

Did you see him again? Yes, about 11 p.m.

Where was he then? He was taken out of the cell by Det. Sub-Inspector Gabbutt.

Where was he taken? To the detectives' office.

Did you see him again? No, sir, not that day.

Who relieved you at 12? Sergt. Ling.

Cross-examined by Mr. Reader Harris: Did you see Sergt. Belchin at 12 o'clock? No.

Nor at 11 p.m.? No, I think I saw Loh Tse-Wah first of all in the charge room and not in the cell.

In reply to the Magistrate, witness thought the prisoner was present when the charge was made. He would take the charge any time between 6 and 8 p.m.

P. C. George Mesling, of Hongkew Station, said he was on duty at Hongkew on February 5th and 6th. He saw the complainant on the 6th. Witness was ordered at 1.35 to take a Chinese prisoner, who had been reported sick, to the Police hospital. He could not leave at once, but at 2.10 he went and released the prisoner, took him to the charge room, and returned to him a Chinese waistband which had been taken from him. Witness received a chit from the Sergeant on duty to take him to the hospital. He took the complainant there, where he was examined. They returned at 2.50.

By Mr. Macleod: Did Loh Tse-wah, during the time he was with you, sustain any injury at all? No.

The Magistrate: How did you take him? I walked with him to the corner of the Woosung and Boone Roads and there I called a ricksha.

By Mr. Macleod: Had you seen this man at all before that? No.

Were you on duty in the charge room the day before? Yes, from 4 p.m. to 12 midnight. My duty is on the streets. I called at the station about five times that night. I was in and out.

REPAS IS CALLED

Det. Sergt. Repas, of Hongkew, was also called. He was on duty on February 5, 6 and 7th.

Mr. Macleod: Have you had anything to do with the man Loh? No.

Nothing at all? No.

Did you see him? Maybe, I do not know.

You cannot remember? No, but I never work on Chinese cases.

Mr. Macleod asked the witness to see his diary so as to be quite sure that he had had nothing to do with the case.

Witness said he did not work from 8 p.m. on the 5th to 10 a.m. on the 6th. He left the station at noon on the 5th and did not return until the next morning.

Sergt. Ernest J. Ling, of Hongkew, produced the duty book. Reference was made to the entries made as to the duties of foreign officers on February 5. All the names in the list were in his handwriting, but the "beats" were not.

Mr. Macleod asked witness what duties Gabbutt had on the night of the 5th.

Witness could not say.

Mr. Macleod drew his attention to the fact that the entries had been made by witness under the heading of "detective duty."

Witness referred to "time."

Mr. Macleod reminded him that no reference had been made to time. Witness was to answer the questions.

Sergt. Ling said he could not say anything as to the duties other than that the officers referred to were on "detective duty." That was all he could say. Det. Sub-Inspector Conduit had quarters in the station, but was not on duty there. Witness was on duty from 12 midnight to 7 a.m. on the 6th.

SAW COMPLAINANT

After you went on duty in the charge room at midnight did you see Loh? Yes.

When did you see him? He passed through the charge room to go to the cells.

What time? Between 1.25 and 1.37 a.m.

Who was with him? Gabbutt, and a Chinese detective.

Do you recollect his name? No, but I know his face.

This witness then identified the Chinese as Koo Tsung-woo.

Anybody else with him? As he was entering the charge room I think Det. Sergt. Okajima came along.

Anybody else? I went over to the cell with him. The night cell man opened the cell for him.

Foreign or Chinese? Chinese.

Where did you see these people? In the charge room.

Was that the only time you saw him that night? No, I saw him asleep on the wooden bed in the cell every half hour at first and every hour afterwards. I saw him from the cell door only.

Had you seen him before 1.30 a.m.? No.

Mr. Reader Harris: What time was it by the clock when he passed through the charge room? 1.25 a.m.

When you came on duty at 12 midnight did you see Det. Sergt. Balchin? I saw him with Det. Sergt. Schmidt about 11.45 p.m.

Where did you see them? They were leaving the station by the main gate, and walking.

Mr. Macleod: Was that the only time you saw Balchin that evening? I saw him again with Schmidt in the charge room some time later; between 12.30 and 1 a.m.

Are you quite sure that you saw Balchin with Schmidt and that the time is correct? Yes. The first time was about 11.45 and I was getting ready to go on duty. As to the time I am not quite sure of the second occasion I saw them.

P. C. G. H. Parry said he was on patrol duty and office work from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the 5th. He was on duty in the charge room or on patrol. His quarters were opposite the charge room, leading from the Minghong gate to the compounds.

Sergt. R. Taylor spoke as to his hours of duty on the 5th.

Li Doo-tsu, of Burkill Road, said she was the aunt of the complainant. She recalled the visit of Loh on the 5th. He came to her room, and a Chinese and a foreigner were with him. Complainant told her he had been in the service of a foreigner for three days, and asked her, "Aunt, can you find some plan to borrow $400, to save my life!" He denied the theft and insisted that it was a false charge. A Chinese protested that the man had already confessed so why did he go and ask his aunt to borrow money for him. This took place in the presence of the foreigner, but he did not say anything.

The hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock at this stage.

After the adjournment, Major Hilton Johnson was present during the resumed hearing.

Mr. Macleod intimated that Sub-Inspector Mackenzie desired to make a correction.

Sub-Inspector Mackenzie said he wished to correct the statement he had made as to when Det. Sub-Inspector Gabbutt joined the force. It should have been 1912 and not 1913.

MAJOR JOHNSON CALLED

Major Allen Hilton Johnson was then called. He was Deputy Commissioner of Police.

Mr. Macleod: When was it you first heard of the alleged ill-treatment of the man? About February 8. I cannot recall the exact date.

Did you see any written report by Gabbutt? Then or at any time? My impression is that I did later on. I have not verified it and I cannot be sure.

More than one? Not more than one.

BANKERS HERE ENDORSE STAND TAKEN BY AGLEN

Endorsing the stand taken by Sir Francis Aglen, chief of the Internal Loan Service, the Shanghai Bankers' Association yesterday despatched a telegram to him, promising to fight the Ministry of Finance against its proposal to withdraw the priority given to this service as established by Sir Francis.

Since the appointment of Yang Shou-nan as Vice-minister of Finance, attempts have been made to change the former arrangement for political reasons in spite of the opposition of the bankers in Peking and in Shanghai.

The text of the telegram of the local association follows:

"People here are greatly impressed by your circular letter to the Ministry of Finance and the bankers regarding the internal loan reserves. Seeing that the financial authorities would resort to some other plan, this association has despatched a telegram to the authorities concerned explaining the serious situation and urging the adoption of your proposal. People here are determined to fight at any cost, for the established priority as you announced."

American School Closed For Holidays

Classes at the American School were suspended yesterday afternoon for the spring holidays. Many of the students will return home for the vacation. There are also a number who are remaining in the boarding department for the holidays. Classes will resume the middle of next week.

The spring term closed yesterday, and reports of progress will shortly be mailed to parents of children in the institution.

Following the return from vacation, there will be a heavy calender of events at the American School, and fine athletic schedules for track and baseball have been concluded. Commencement on June seventh, when sixteen members of the Class of 1923 will be awarded their diplomas, will close the two-months session remaining.

The orphanage is reached by going out the Hungjao Road to the railway crossing. The orphans are being cared for in what was the old white railway station.

Deputy Missing, Turkey Aroused

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, April 2.—Ali Chukri Bey, the deputy for Trebizond in the Angora Assembly, has disappeared and it is believed that he has been assassinated. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Captain Mustapha and other well-known persons. The members of the Opposition in the Assembly are violently criticising the Government and demanding arrests in order to discover the causes of Chukri Bey's disappearance.

According to the Constantinople press the threatening political crisis has now been precipitated by the news of the assassination of Ali Chukri Bey. The National Assembly has decided to hold elections immediately.

Ismet Pasha commented on the Allied Note today before the Parliamentary Commission of Foreign Affairs at Angora. The Council of Commissaries then discussed the note. Mustapha Kemal Pasha was present.

It is reported from Constantinople that the Turkish delegates to the peace conference will leave for Lausanne at the end of the week.

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Apr. 3.—It is reported from Angora that the Turkish reply to the latest Note from the Powers will be despatched today. It accepts the proposal for the resumption of negotiations at Lausanne and suggests that the date should be April 15. The reply makes reservations with regard to the economic and judicial questions.

Carleton Baker, his advisor, to the United States to negotiate for the purchase of three American warships scheduled to be scrapped under the Washington agreement, according to a report in the Manchuria Daily News, a Japanese newspaper at Dairen. MANSLAUGHTER CASE

A charge of manslaughter was brought in the Mixed Court yesterday against a coolie held by the police to have been responsible for the death of a Chinese who was assaulted by loafers on Thorburn Road the night of March 31. The accused is the husband of a woman who, with two others, was walking in Thorburn Road on the night in question when they were annoyed by some men. The accused is alleged to have called a gang of loafers and pointed out the victim as one of the molesters. The case was remanded for hearing before the American Assessor, who sat at the inquest.

Exchange Fluctuations
Asia Banking Corporation

April 3, 1923

Spot bar silver in London is down 1-16d. and forward unchanged as compared with March 29th, last day on which we did business here. The New York price in the meantime has declined to 68¼ cents and the London-New York cross rate to 467⅛.

The only changes in our official quotations today as compared with March 29th were a drop in the Gold Dollar rate to 74 and in the Franc rate to 1115.

Our market here in the early part of the day was steady, particularly for Sterling of which there were good sellers at 3s. 3⅛d. April, 3s. 3⅛d. May and 3s. 3⅛d. June. There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 76⅝ April, 76½ May and 76⅜ June.

In the afternoon, however, our market eased off considerably, speculators being quite strong buyers and at the close there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 3d. for April, 3s. 2⅞d. May and 3s. 2⅞d. for June.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars at the close were offering 76 for April and 75⅞ for forward delivery. There were sellers of Yen at the close at 64 for April and buyers at 63⅞ and sellers for May at 64⅛ and buyers at 64.

Banks in the afternoon were quoting 3s. 3⅜d., 77½ and 1165 for Sterling, Gold Dollar and Franc bills respectively. There were, however, very few bills offered.

Last reports from London report the silver market there as being steady.

New York report their market a shade easier due to the fact that United States Government purchases of silver under the Pittman Act are expected to be completed by July 1.

A British Editor's Fight On The American Court

NOT satisfied with his two and a half column screed of the other day, the British trouble maker of the Peking and Tientsin Times has returned to the defense of his American consular confederate, this time descending to actual misrepresentation of the American court in China.

What single portion of the judgment (the Greenstone case in this instance) which he admits having attacked, states as a fact anything that is incorrect in the slightest degree? The quoted remarks of the District Attorney are not properly a part of the judgment, and as the Tientsin editor disclaims any attack on the District Attorney it must be assumed that those remarks are not impugned.

Moreover nothing quoted from the District Attorney was stated as a fact. It was merely observed that he made certain statements. It is but fair for us to add, however, that the District Attorney, as the Consul General knew, was absent from China during the whole of the period covered by the alleged correspondence which is the subject of the Consul General's letter published in the Tientsin papers.

Nor was any mention made in the judgment, as declared in the article referred to, of the Consul General's "alleged negligence in the performance of his duties." Neither by name nor title, in fact, is the Consul General referred to in any original part of the judgment. The Court did not, like the Consul General in his Peking speech of March 23, go out of the way to misrepresent another American institution. The complaining witness referred to the Consul General in his testimony, stating that he "was keen on getting to know all about it" (the case) and suggested the criminal proceedings, which the complaining witness did not seek, and "thought the evidence sufficient ... to wire to Shanghai and ask the Court to arrest Mr. Greenstone." The Court quoted the testimony as was perfectly proper, but made no comment, and it is a libel on the complaining witness for the Tientsin editor to insinuate that the testimony is untrue.

The Court, indeed, commented, as it should have done on the hardship "not alone to the defendant but also to the complaining witness, by ignoring the law." But the court did not assume to say who had ignored the law. The Consul General seems to have assumed that the shoe fitted him but for that assumption the court is not responsible.

Another misrepresentation is the claim that the letter of "the his editorial friend "was not confidential" but was a part of the Consular Court records. The Consul General himself was particular to state in his published letter to the District Attorney that the case was "not before the Consular Court." Moreover the Acting District Attorney's letter contained his confidential opinion regarding the effect of certain evidence, which it was highly improper to give out. No prosecuting officer could afford to correspond with one who would give out such letters. The Consul General himself must have known this for ordinarily no one is more secretive about files. Witness the Gersevich case where he declined to give out his reasons, which were found to be trivial, for refusing to visa a passport, though the State Department had no hesitancy in disclosing them as insufficient.

The Peking and Tientsin Times leader of March 29 is full of misrepresentations. But this is not the main point. Why is this British editor waging this fight on the highest American Court in China?

Bedtime Stories

An Indignation Meeting

BY T. W. BURGESS

When many Crows all talk at once
They make a noisy clatter,
But you will find that little's said;
'Tis naught but foolish chatter.
Hooty The Owl.

What Blacky the Crow had told her Mrs. Blacky found to be wholly true. There was no doubt that their old nest had been taken by Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty. Watching them from the top of a tall tree near by, Mrs. Blacky grew angrier and angrier. She grew so angry she almost choked. How she did long to scream at those two Owls and tell them just what she thought of them. But she didn't dare do it. No, sir, she didn't dare do it. She didn't dare make a sound. That is why her anger almost choked her.

Having satisfied herself that what Blacky had told her was true, she flew back to whore he was waiting for her, and then in silence they flew over to a group of big hemlock trees, where in company with their relatives and friends they spent their nights. It was almost dark when they got there, and most of the other Crows had arrived. Many of them had settled themselves for the night.

Blacky flew at once to the top of the tallest tree and there began to caw at the top of his lungs. It was the Crow call for a meeting. Those who had settled themselves for the night came out again. Those who had not yet arrived but were within hearing of his voice hurried as fast as they could make their wings go. Every one knew that Blacky had something important to tell.

As soon as the last straggler had arrived, Blacky and Mrs. Blacky told what had happened. They told how they had visited their old nest, thinking perhaps they might repair it and use it again, and how they discovered that it had been taken by Hooty the Great Horned Owl and Mrs. Hooty. At the mention of Hooty's name a great racket broke out. Every one of those Crows had to call him a bad name. It was some time before Blacky could go on with his story.

"Do you mean to tell us that those Owls have already begun nesting, with snow everywhere and the Big River still covered with ice?" demanded a young Crow in a tone of voice that plainly showed that he, for one, didn't believe it.

"You heard what I said," retorted Blacky sharply. The young Crow looked around at all the older Crows, and saw that not one of them doubted what Blacky had told them. He suspected that he had exposed his own ignorance, so he quietly changed his perch to a place where he could hear but not be noticed.

As soon as Blacky and Mrs. Blacky had finished their story all those Crows began talking at once. And as is the way with Crows, they talked very loud. Such a racket as they made! To have heard them you would have thought that that nest belonged to all of them instead of just to Blacky and Mrs. Blacky. Each one seemed to make the matter a personal affair. Each one had a great deal to say as to what should be done.

It was too late to do anything that night, for there was not a Crow among them who would dare be out after dark. So after a great deal of talk and indignation, it was decided that early the next morning they would all go

What Might Have Been

The hand that rocks the cradle but there is no such hand.
It is bad to rock the baby, they would have us understand.
So the cradle's but a relic of the former foolish days.
When they jounced them, and they bounced them, those poor dwarfs of long ago,
The Washingtons and Jeffersons
and Adamses, you know.
They warn us that the baby will possess a muddled brain
If we dandle him or rock him;
we must carefully refrain;
He must lie in one position, never swayed or never swung,
Or his chance to grow to greatness will be blasted while he's young.
Ah, to think how they were ruined
by their mothers long ago,
The Franklins and the Putnams and the Hamiltons, you know.
We must feed the baby only by the schedule that is made
And the food that he is given must be measured out and weighed.
He may bellow to inform us that he isn't satisfied,
But he couldn't grow to greatness if his wants were all supplied;
Think how foolish nursing stunted
those poor weaklings long ago,
The Shakespeares and the Luthers and the Bonapartes, you know.
We are given a great mission, we are here, today on earth
To bring forth a race of giants and to guard them from their birth.
To insist upon their freedom from the rocking that was bad
For our parents and their parents, scrambling all the brains they had.
Ah! had they been fed by schedule,
would they have been stunted
so—
The Websters and the Lincolns and the Grants and Lees, you know?

Books And So Forth

BY F. VAN DE WATER

On March 22, John Drew celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his first appearance as an actor. The story of the roles he has played in that half century is contained in his autobiography, "My Years on the Stage."

To us it seems that Mr. Drew has done a most difficult thing extremely well. To say that he is modest signifies at once that he is conscious of his own importance and has striven to minimise it. It is not modesty that has given the book its refreshing flavor. It is Mr. Drew's ability to tell a straightaway story in a straightaway fashion.

The limelight, necessarily, is fixed on him from first page to last. Yet not once does Mr. Drew forget that he is an actor and attempt to serve as audience as well. There is a notable absence of self applause. It is strange that a person whose profession it has been to inspire plaudits should be able to write so impartial a volume about himself.

Mr. Drew, long ago, won the reputation of being an actor of culture and distinction. His "My Years on the Stage" gives him right to the even rarer title of an autobiographer who is not infatuated with the hero of his story. He is evidently one of these unusual persons who are more interested in the world in which they live than in themselves.

The book should have an appeal for members of all surviving generations. Parents and grandparents, and even great-grandparents, will have memories reburnished and recollections reawakened by reading John Drew's life.

To persons more vitally concerned with the past of the stage than we are, the casts of characters included in the volume will probably prove intensely interesting. Personally, we wish that Mr. Drew had left some of them out and included instead more anecdote.

Anecdotes have always seemed to us the most appealing part of all history, personal or national. They are little flashes of enlightenment that frequently reveal more than the steady glare of the spotlight. The personality of Lincoln that Americans worship, whether it be accurate or not, is literally an image composed of a fine mosaic of anecdotes. Washington we think, is a less human figure because too little of his personality has been embalmed in little tales of conduct. There is, of course, the priggish and immoral cherry tree incident. Not even the report that its hero grew up to "swear like an angel" at the battle of Monmouth quite frees his character of its taint.

For years we lived on the threshold of an anecdote that would have freed Washington for all time from the onus of the cherry tree fable so far as we ourselves were concerned. We had a beloved and venerable relative who knew the favorite oath of the Father of His Country. She had obtained it, during her girlhood, from an old, old spinster, the daughter of the overseer at Mount Vernon. It was imparted to her, after considerable nagging on her part, in an awestruck whisper.

It was, so our relative frequently told us, manifestly a verbatim quotation, with no deletions. It was also of considerable length, with no repetitions. Our relative had received it seventy years before. She had never repeated it a soul. But she told us it was still vivid in her mind. We believe it was.

No laborer in Egyptian ruins ever dug more patiently and persistently into the past than we did to unearth this treasure. We never succeeded. For the benefit of posterity the first five words of George Washington's favorite oath were:

"Now may the almighty Jehovah"—

Apparently his was the swearing of a master craftsman. It is evident that there was considerable wind-up before the malediction was hurled. Men pay less attention to such things in these days. Intellectually, they may demand variety and change. Emotionally, they are content to go along in the paths blazed by their forefathers. You have only to hear the average man's cussing to realise this—no originality of concept, no personal style of presentation, no imposing vocabulary; only a few shopworn and silly phrases said over and over.

We aren't at all sure that Washington today would not have been a more human and lovable figure to the world at large if his inaugural address had been lost and his favorite oath preserved instead.

There are numerous anecdotes in "My Years on the Stage," but we wish there were even more. Not the worst of these is Mr. Drew's account of a meeting with E. H. Sothern in Louisville, Ky. They were talking together when a leading citizen intervened, hailed Sothern as "Mr. Mansfield," welcomed him to the city and departed. Mr. Drew continues:

"'Why in heaven's name didn't you say something?' I asked.

"'What was there to say?' said Sothern.

"'He doesn't know that Dick Mansfield is dead,' I went on.

"'Well,' said Sothern, 'that doesn't hurt me so much. He doesn't know that I am alive.'"

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

The gray and dismal days when loneliness
Falls like a soggy blanket on the town,
When Nature has put on a sombre dress,
And every stranger passes, looking down—
On such days weak men, whipped and sad and sore,
Slink into dark seclusion, lost to hope,
And having passes good at hell's back door,
Surrender to the clammy clutch of Dope. . .

Souls do not die when men return to dust,
And souls are never scorched in any hell;
Each at his birth receives a soul in trust,
To be his only while he guards it well.
No soul remains where lust has come to sway,
Or where hate takes possession of a heart;
Souls never die or wither or decay,
But when vice comes to crowd them they depart.

The souls that once were theirs who grope in sin
Come often to the hearts from which they fled,
And here and there one tenderly creeps in
To nurse a hope thought long since to be dead.
Where men and women sprawl in reeking holes,
Their minds besotted, their senses stupefied,
There is the velvet flutter of lost souls
Awaiting calls from reawakened pride. . . .

Let him who thinks his soul is dead cast out
The fear that halts his step and dulls his wits,
For, even while he yields himself to doubt,
The soul he shamed still near him fondly flits,
And when, at night, in loneliness, he goes
The way that ends beyond the gates of Hope,
Let him remember the lost souls of those
Who weaken in the clammy clutch of Dope.

Discovery Of Electricity Belongs To No One Man

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

(Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest)

A Columbus, Ohio, correspondent said: "I cannot figure out how Benjamin Franklin was the father of electricity simply because he sent up a kite and from a key at the end of the silken cord felt a shock. What part of this was so important? Is it the knowledge that electricity would pass along a string, or what?"

It is not correct to call Franklin "the father of electricity," (meaning electrical science). There is no one man to whom that honor could justly be assigned. But Franklin was one of the most important of the early contributors to the work of building up the science of electricity. His most striking achievement was proving that lightning is a manifestation of electricity. That was what his kite experiment accomplished.

He had previously discovered a phenomenon that is sometimes called, picturesquely, "electric wind," but more correctly described by the phrase "point discharge." If a needle is attached to the conductor of an electric machine on which a strong charge of electricity has been accumulated, the electricity streams off from the point of the needle, thus gradually discharging the conductor, and currents of electrified air repelled from the point may be felt by the hand, or may produce a visible effect by blowing away the flame of a candle. This electric wind will produce a charge upon any insulated body upon which it impinges. In a similar way a metallic point presented toward a charged conductor will "draw off" electricity, or gradually relieve the electric strain without a violent discharge.

Having by his experiments discovered these phenomena of "point discharge," it occurred to Franklin that a pointed iron rod directed toward a thunder-cloud might act in a similar way, because he had begun to believe that lightning was simply a violent discharge of electricity accumulated upon the clouds.

His conjecture turned out to be correct, and so Franklin may be properly called the "father of the lightning-rod," for as soon as his practical mind had conceived the idea of "drawing off" electricity from a thunder-cloud, he immediately suggested an apparatus to give protection against lightning. Thus in his first publication on the subject, in 1749, he said:

"May not the knowledge of this power of points be of use to mankind in preserving houses, churches, ships, etc., from the stroke of lightning by directing us to fix on the highest parts of those edifices upright rods of iron made sharp as a needle and gilt to prevent rusting, and from the foot of those rods a wire down outside the building into the ground, or round one of the shrouds of a ship and down her side till it reaches the water? Would not these pointed rods probably draw the electrical fire silently out of a cloud before it came high enough to strike?"

But circumstances prevented Franklin himself from trying the experiment of the high pointed rod. However, his suggestion reached Europe, and in 1752, Dalibard, a Frenchman, erected a rod according to Franklin's plan, and succeeded in drawing sparks from a thundercloud.

But before the news got back to America of what Dalibard had done, Franklin tried a new idea, that of the kite. New ideas are sparks flying from the brain when some sensory impression hits it just the right way. The impression that struck off the kite-and-thunder clouds in Franklin's head was the sight of a boy in a field flying a kite.

Franklin made himself a kite by fastening his silk handkerchief instead of paper on the ordinary cross sticks, in order that the kite might withstand rain. Then he fixed a small pointed wire on the apex of the kite, and a silk ribbon to the lower end of the string, and sent the kite up in a thunderstorm. After considerable waiting, partially sheltered by a cowshed, and some disappointment over lack of results, the conditions became right, and sparks flew from a key attached to the cord. Then Franklin conducted the electricity thus derived from the clouds into a Leyden jar which he had provided for the experiment.

The French had no thought of trying to rob Franklin of the credit of his discovery, merely because one of their countrymen had tried his experiment before he could, and when, later on, he went to Paris and visited the French Academy, all the members rose to their feet as he entered the room while the president dramatically proclaimed:

"Eripuit coelo fulmen!" ("He snatched the lightning from heaven!")

Looking Toward Internationalism

In a speech made before the Civilian Club, in New York, the other day, Sir Charles Higham, of England, pleaded for a wider measure of internationalism and for a more general distribution of the real news of each country among the people of other countries, says the Christian Science Monitor. He was discussing the matter of the payment of the British debt to the United States, and discussing it in a way thoroughly tolerant and intelligent. He pointed out what financiers all know, but what too many of the people do not precisely understand, that huge foreign debts of this sort cannot be paid in bags of gold. They never could be fully paid thus. They all have to be paid ultimately in goods. Time was when, if the goods shipped from the United States to Great Britain, for example, proved inadequate to pay the debts incurred by the United States in Great Britain, either for money borrowed or for goods purchased, the difference was made up in gold. But at present that simple method of adjusting the balance is made difficult by the fact that the United States already controls two-thirds of the available gold of the world. Accordingly the British debt must in the main be paid either in services or in goods. Some of the services the United States is trying earnestly to dispense with, such as the carrying of freights on the high seas and insuring vessels. And when it comes to the payment in goods, the United States puts many obstacles in the way through its recently adopted tariff, which is especially designed to prevent the admission of foreign goods to American markets.

Sir Charles has the courage of his convictions. He urges that every nation should concentrate its efforts on that which it can do best, instead of trying to artificially encourage its people to undertake things which they do not do quite as well as do their competitors. He says, "We make the most textiles in the world. You make the finest clothes. You have the greatest automobile industry and market, and we just play at it. Why in the world don't we stop playing at it? Why don't you concentrate on making clothes and automobiles, and take our textiles?"

Viewed from the standpoint of securing the highest efficiency throughout the world, the queries are not difficult to answer. Indeed, if there were no such thing as national pride or international jealousies the questions would answer themselves. If the United States can make the best automobiles and at the cheapest price that they can be made anywhere, why should not all nations buy of the United States? If Great Britain can build and operate ships more cheaply than any other nation of the world, why not turn the carrying trade of the world over to Great Britain? If France excels all other nations in the manufacture of silks, why not leave silks to France, instead of encouraging a somewhat weakling industry of this character in the United States?

Perhaps in time it will come to that. But so intelligent a regulation of the affairs of the world presupposes a wider spirit of co-operation, and a complete abandonment of the narrowness of nationalism. It would involve the general acceptance of one Mind controlling all mankind. But that even the possibility of such universal co-operation, such widespread harmonious action for the benefit of all, can be discussed seriously by men of affairs today is indicative at least that human thought is tending in the right direction.

Did you see at any time a report written by Balchin? I do not think I did. I am sorry I have not verified these points. I do not think I did.

These reports, if any, would be in whose possession now? Probably filed in the Registrar's Police headquarters.

Who is this individual? Chief Inspector Aiers, or possibly in the offices of the Director of Criminal Intelligence, Mr. Armstrong.

Some Police officer who could verify it? Yes.

Am I right in saying that there was a Police enquiry held into this matter? Yes.

From 10th to 12th of February? Yes.

And on that occasion the two accused here were before the enquiry? The board of enquiry was convened by the Commissioner of Police and I suppose there must have been possibly 15 or more persons interrogated by the board. Gabbutt and Balchin were two.

You say they were interrogated—before they were interrogated was any threat or promise or other inducement held out to them? No.

Nothing of the kind? No. Moreover they were not cautioned in any way that they need not speak if they did not want to.

Were either of them under arrest in any sense? No.

The Magistrate: Suspension?

Witness: Not, to my best recollection not suspended.

Mr. Macleod supposed they had been apprised in some manner of the complaint or the statement made of the ill-treatment at Hongkew Station before interrogation, in some form, or what the interrogation was about.

Witness said that was not so—none of them. They were told to be there. The enquiry was held in his (witness's) office and they were told to be there at a certain time. During the course of the enquiry it might have been mentioned.

Mr. Macleod said he meant that as a matter of fact at the enquiry itself the attention of the accused was drawn in some way to the subject matter of the enquiry.

Mr. Maitland objected to the evidence, as the enquiry had been convened by the Commissioner of Police and the statements were those made by an inferior officer to a superior officer.

Authorities as to the admissability of the evidence were quoted.

Witness, said a statement was taken by a member of the board from the complainant at the hospital on the first day of the enquiry. The accused were before the Commissioner of Police one day, but witness did not know if it was the same day as they were before the Watch Committee. He did not know of any statement made by the accused.

By Mr. Reader Harris: Both men were told to attend by you? Yes.

They were not present at the enquiry when other witnesses were called? No.

They would not know necessarily who had given evidence? Not unless they happened to meet.

Witness added the enquiry was held merely under the regulations of the Commissioner, so as to gather information which he desired to get and which he had no time to get himself.

Witness added that if there were any regulations under which the enquiry would be held they would be the King's Regulations, but it was held under the regulations of the Commissioner.

Mr. Reader Harris intimated that both the accused went to see the members of the Watch Committee but were not called in.

Note was taken by the Magistrate of the fact that the evidence given at the enquiry was not then admissible as it would be public property as well as for other reasons.

Mr. A. Ting, barrister-at-law, said he saw the complainant at Hongkew Station on the 6th. Witness was shown into the detectives' room and saw the complainant in the presence of Mr. Gabbutt. Witness asked Loh what the charges was and he said it was false, at the same time he complained of being sore all over—sore inside. Mr. Ting was curious about it and wanted the man to take off his coat to see if there were bruises. He could not do it as his right arm seemed to be hanging down. Complainant was helped, and Gabbutt assisted.

Apart from the bruise on the eyebrow, there was a bruise on his shoulder, elbow, and the skin above the buttocks seemed pinkish and moist. Witness thought there was enough to support the complaint as to pain, so he did not examine further. Complainant had assistance in dressing, and said that he had not had food since 5 that morning. That startled the detective officer somewhat. It was after 6 p.m. when he visited the station. The officer said that could not be true. Witness asked the complainant if he meant that food was given to him but he could not take it. Then Loh said food had been supplied but on account of his soreness he could not eat. Witness said he intended to get the man examined by a doctor outside. Gabbutt went to see Sub-Inspector Mackenzie.

In reply to Mr. Macleod witness said he had asked Loh who had reduced him to this condition. He asked in the presence of Gabbutt. Complainant said a number of persons had been beating him. He mentioned no names.

Witness then referred to the Mixed Court proceedings.

By Mr. Reader Harris: Didn't he say anything as to nationality? In the Police Station he mentioned Japanese.

He mentioned Chinese? Possibly. He did not mention names.

Didn't Inspector Gabbutt go out to get the Chinese so as to get them identified? No.

Re-examined by Mr. Macleod witness said the complainant seemed very reluctant to disclose anything as to who beat him. He mentioned Japanese and Chinese, and then slurred his statement.

The gatekeeper at 40 Jessfield Road said he saw the complainant (handcuffed), two Chinese, and one foreigner inside the gate of his master's house on February 5. Complainant spoke of torture and wanted to borrow several hundred dollars. Witness identified Balchin as the foreigner who was present when Loh Tse Wah spoke in Chinese. The foreigner did not speak.

Who spoke of torture or punishment? Loh told me.

What did he say about torture? He said he had been falsely charged, that he had been tortured, and wanted to borrow several hundred dollars from the madame of the house.

Witness added that the face of Loh was swollen.

Lo Tsung Tsu, an amah at Mr. Chang's home, stated that she saw the complainant on February 5, after 4 p.m. He was accompanied by two Chinese and a foreigner. She could not recognise the latter, as she stood on the verandah and did not see him clearly. She asked complainant how he got into that state and he told her his master had lost $740. He wanted to borrow money to "save his life," and said he had been tortured and could not bear any more.

Miss Chang, of 40 Jessfield Road, knew the complainant and saw him on February 5 about 5 o'clock. He appealed to her to ask madame to save his life by lending him money.

Mr. Chang Yuan Chi, a director of the Commercial Press, said he formerly employed the complainant as assistant chauffeur for about six months. He saw him at the Mixed Court on February 7. After the proceedings concluded witness saw Loh was in a poor state and he was assisted to the car. He was in a "frightful state." Loh was taken to witness's office, and afterwards to see Dr. Stafford Cox, who examined him thoroughly.

The hearing was then adjourned until 10 this morning.

Dr. Sun's Aim Is To Make Kwangtung A Model Province

Canton, April 2.—Interviewed yesterday by the correspondent of the Associated Press, Mr. Eugene Chen, private secretary to Doctor Sun Yat-sen, declared that Doctor Sun's policy was to welcome British and American capital for the construction of a network of railways linking the important commercial centers in China. For sign experts, Mr. Chen said, would be engaged in the rehabilitation of finances as well as in the supervision of railway construction.

It was Doctor Sun's immediate plan, stated Mr. Chen, to make Kwangtung a model of rejuvenated China. Doctor Sun realised that the success of this plan would depend largely upon the solution of the problem of troop disbandment.

Touching upon the question of mines, Mr. Chen said that while the mines would remain public properties, the provincial administration encouraged their exploitation by private corporations.

Mr. Chen denied that Doctor Sun intended at present to re-establish the Constitutionalist Government in Canton, in view of the recent action of the Northern Government in connection with the appointment of General Shen Hung-ying and General Yang Shih-min as Director-General and Associate Director of the Military Administration of Kwangtung. The appointment was long anticipated, he said, and its futility was early known.

Mr. Chen pointed out that General Yang and his Yunnan troops were very loyal to Doctor Sun and that the main body of General Shen's troops were being transferred to the North-Western part of the province, having declared their allegiance to Doctor Sun.

"What is worrying Doctor Sun most," Mr. Chen remarked, "is the bandit activities in the interior of this province, which greatly endanger public welfare and impede industrial development. Drastic measures, however, are being adopted for the suppression of the brigands."

Japanese Shocked By Motor Tragedy

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Apr. 3.—The entire nation is shocked at the tragedy. Prince Kitashirakawa was very popular as are also the Princess and Prince Asaka.

The French Ambassador cancelled his social engagements immediately on receipt of the news. It is expected that a number of Easter week functions, including a dinner which was to be given by the Japan Society to Admiral Sir Arthur Levenson, will be cancelled.

(Reuter's Service)

Bernay, April 2.—The condition of Prince Asaka and Princess Kitashirakawa this evening is more satisfactory.

Prince Kitashirakawa's body has been embalmed and will be despatched to Paris tomorrow.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Kyoto April 3.—Princess Asaka and her children were staying at Suma when they heard of the accident to Prince Asaka in France, but they have now removed to Kyoto where they are momentarily awaiting further news.

The newspapers in Osaka and Kyoto are issuing frequent extra editions. The profoundest sympathy is everywhere expressed with the victims of the accident and their relatives and friends.
